

The relationship between democracy and citizenship.

- everyone should be an active citizen
 - so, everyone should participate politically
 - * so, democracy enables that
- not everyone is eligible to vote; not everyone can be a citizen of a country
- nationality
 - people's political willingness and/or views may depend on their nationality
 - * so, their willingness to participate in citizen affairs might too